OVERVIEW OF THE DAY

Kingitanga Day is an opportunity for students, staff and the wider community to celebrate the University's distinctive identity, heritage and relationships.

A showcase of events through a University-wide programme of presentations, panels, workshops, arts and crafts, displays and performances.

Nau mai, haere mai, te tini me te mano!

KĪNGITANGA BACKGROUND

In 1858, the Kingitanga or the Māori King Movement was established by Māori tribes from across the land. Its purpose was to put an end to Māori land alienation, to halt inter-tribal warfare and to preserve Mana Māori Motuhake, in effect to unite the people.

- » Pōtatau Te Wherowhero of Waikato Tainui was installed as the first Māori King in 1858.
- » In 1860, Kingi Pōtatau was succeeded by his son Tāwhiao, also known as Matutaera.
- » In 1894 following the death of Kingi Tāwhiao, his son Mahuta was appointed the third Māori King.
- » In 1912 Te Rata was invested with the Kingship, followed by his son Koroki who became the fifth Māori King in 1933.
- » Upon the death of Kingi Koroki in 1966, the King Movement saw the coronation of the first Māori Queen, Te Arikini Dame Te Atairangikaahu.
- » Ascending to the Throne in 2006, the current reigning monarch of the Kingitanga is Kingi Tuheitia.
